NewParis, a contemporary Didot in 3 sizes

NewParis is rooted in the tradition of the French modern faces as cut by the Didots in the late 18th and 19th century. As such, it is distinguished by a high contrast between thick and thin strokes. This necessitates size-specific versions: NewParis Text has sturdier hairlines and works best in sizes below 18pt. For elegant headings, titles or big quotes, use the more filigree NewParis Headline. To ensure superfine strokes even in extra-large display settings, we offer a third cut. NewParis KingSize lends royal grace and beauty to text in sizes above 36pt. Some of the characteristic details of NewParis are inspired by historical models, including the rounded apexes in letters like 'A', 'M', or 'W'. However, it is not a direct revival, but a contemporary interpretation of the genre, designed to meet the requirements of today.

NewParis Text and Headline each come in three weights with italics. NewParis KingSize additionally features a fourth ultralight weight, the majestic KingSize Air. The Collection totals in at 20 styles, providing plenty of options for covering a wide range of applications, from magazines and posters to catalogs and websites. Indeed designers already have put NewParis to great use in the fields of editorial design, fashion, packaging, and branding. It has been successfully adopted by art museums, cultural festivals and luxury restaurants, from Los Angeles to Salzburg.
